BARBADOS INDUSTRIAL DEVELOPMENT CORP.

Produced and placed advertisements directed to the business community to encourage interest in the establishment of small business and industrial plants within Barbados. Media schedule included Nation's Business, The New York Times, Wall St. Journal (Eastern, Midwest, and Pacific Cost Editions), Cincinnati Enquirer, Pittsburgh Press, Dallas News and the Houston Chronicle, as well as President Magazine (Japan).

Examples of advertisements attached hereto.

On Barbados, only one thing can grow as fast as sugar cane. Your plant.

If you're looking for a perfect plant site, you need look no further than Barbados.

Let's start with the simple things like the weather. Our climate is almost perfect all year round. Sunshine, blue skies, and the cooling trade winds.

Our people are warm and friendly, with a literacy rate of 98%. And by the way, English is our mother tongue. Our island is one of the most beautiful in the Caribbean. With every sport on land and sea imaginable. These things all serve to help industry.

But now let's get down to business.

There are eight fully-serviced and fully-equipped industrial parks on Barbados, not to mention an international airport served by nine of the world's largest airlines, and a deep-water harbour in Bridgetown.

Our communication systems are the finest in the Caribbean (both internal and external) and include worldwide cable and wireless connections.

And as added incentive, you pay no corporate income or trade tax for a long ten years. Plus no duties on the machinery or raw materials you need to produce your product for export.

Things do grow very fast on Barbados, especially industry.

BARBADOS MINISTER INVITES

INVESTMENTS AT NEW YORK GATHERING

New York...May 24...Senator Branford M. Taitt, Minister of Trade, Industry and Commerce for the Caribbean island-nation of Barbados, today invited Barbadians who have emigrated to the United States to consider investing in the industrialization of their former homeland.

Addressing some 200 leaders of the Barbadian community in New York at a dinner at The New York Hilton, Senator Taitt called attention to the success of "Operation Beehive", his country's industrial development program which has already attracted some three dozen manufacturing firms from North America, thereby creating many thousands of jobs in Barbados. Senator Taitt stressed that his country wishes to attract not only large corporations, but is especially interested in smaller investments in manufacturing facilities from people with close personal ties to his country. The benefits of such investments can be great not only to the investor, but also to the people of Barbados for whom new job opportunities must be created especially in the manufacturing and managerial areas. At the same time, Senator Taitt pointed out that Barbados would welcome the return of Barbadians now living overseas who can bring home with them the technical know-how they acquired abroad.

Under "Operation Beehive," Barbados offers manufacturers such incentives as duty-free importation of raw materials used in the manufacture of goods for re-export, lease-purchase arrangements of government constructed factory space, and unrestricted repatriation of capital and profits. Barbados also offers new industries a liberal ten-year tax holiday, followed by a corporate tax ceiling of only 12½% for companies manufacturing solely for export.

Today's function, was sponsored by the Barbados Industrial Development Corporation and was the first ever to be held specifically for Barbadian national here. Yesterday, a similar meeting was held with representatives of Japanese companies in New York. Accompanying Senator Taitt were Senator Samuel V. Ashby, Chairman of the Barbados Industrial Development Corporation as well as Dr. Kurleigh King and Mr. Anthony Vanterpool, of the Corporation's Bridgetown headquarters. With them were Messrs. Roy Clarke and Anton Norris of the New York office. Hon. Livingstone Goring, Consul-General of Barbados at New York introduced the speakers.

Speaking at the dinner, Senator Taitt attributed much of the program's success to the island's highly literate (over 98% literacy rate), hard working and productive labor force.

In addition to being the home of a University of The West Indies campus, Barbados has a new Polytechnic College and a Community College which now provide training in industrial and managerial skills. Until her independence in 1966, Barbados was under British rule for 300 years.

The government will assist management by screening job applicants through the Barbados Employment Exchange, and will aid in the training of new employees where special skills are required.

Barbados hopes to attract additional labor-intensive industries in such fields as electronics, data processing, computer assembly, pharmaceuticals, and the manufacture of toys and garments.

BARBADOS MINISTER INVITES JAPANESE
INVESTMENTS AT NEW YORK GATHERING

New York...May 23...Senator Branford M. Taitt, Minister of Trade, Industry and Commerce for the Caribbean island-nation of Barbados, today invited Japanese industry to consider the establishment of off-shore manufacturing facilities in his country. At a luncheon-seminar for American-based Japanese businessmen, Senator Taitt pointed to the success of "Operation Beehive," his country's industrial development program which has already attracted some three dozen United States firms and suggested that its incentives would be particularly useful to Japanese industries in search of new foot-holds in the British Commonwealth and South America.

Since independence, over 30 American businesses as well as firms from Britain, Canada and Japan have opened on the island, in such fields as electronics, data processing, computer assembly, pharmaceuticals, and the manufacture of toys and garments. Barbados hopes to attract additional labor-intensive industries.

Barbados International Airport is one of the most modern in the Caribbean, with daily connections to cities in the United States, Europe, South America and the Caribbean. Bridgetown's deep water harbour has berthing facilities for eight large ships, clearing 20,000 tons of cargo per day.

PLANS TO LAUNCH

CARIBBEAN TOURISM CENTRE

By agreement of the participating governments, Barbados has been selected as the site of the new Caribbean Tourism Centre.

Among its several functions, the Caribbean Tourism Centre will study the developmental, cultural and ecological aspects and effects of tourism on the Caribbean nations, said The Honorable Peter Morgan, M. P. Barbados Minister of Tourism, Information and Public Relations and Chairman of the meeting.

The Centre will also be involved with research and the collection of data as well as serve as an institution of original thinking and long term planning.

The meeting was the result of several months of planning by representatives of such organizations as the Caribbean Travel Association, Christian Action for the Development of the Caribbean, the Association of Caribbean Universities and Research Institutes, the University of the West Indies, the Caribbean Hotel Association and other related organizations.

The Honorable Peter Morgan was appointed Chairman of the Board of Directors and Mr. Carlos Diago, the representative of Puerto Rico, was elected Deputy Chairman. Representatives of Barbados, Puerto Rico, St. Vincent, the Caribbean Hotel Association, the Caribbean Travel Association and the Christian Action for Development in the Caribbean were named to be the first six directors of the Centre. Five additional seats on the Board of Directors were left vacant to allow for appointments to be made from countries and organizations not attending the meeting. It was pointed out, however, that many of the countries and organizations had sent messages of support for the Centre.

The selection of Barbados as the site for the Caribbean Tourism Centre was by unanimous decision and officials of Codrington College, one of the oldest institutions of higher learning in the Western Hemisphere, offered facilities at the College for housing the Centre. Among the other offers of service to the newly created Centre was one for computer services from Puerto Rico.

MANUFACTURERS GATHER TO HEAR BARBADIANS SPEAK
ABOUT "OPERATION BEEHIVE"

Cincinnati, Ohio: April 26, 1973...The Barbados Industrial Development Corporation today hosted a luncheon seminar for industrialists in the Cincinnati area at Stouffer's Cincinnati Inn to outline "Operation Beehive," Barbados' program of incentives to manufacturers.

Under "Operation Beehive," Barbados offers manufacturers such incentives as duty-free importation of raw materials used in the manufacture of goods for re-export, lease-purchase arrangements of government constructed factory space, and unrestricted repatriation of capital and profits. Barbados also offers new industries a liberal ten year tax holiday, followed by a corporate tax ceiling of only 12½% for companies manufacturing solely for export.

Speaking at the luncheon, Mr. Roy Clarke, U.S. Manager of the Barbados Industrial Development Corporation, attributed much of the program's success to the island's highly literate (over 98% literacy rate), hard working and productive labor force.

In addition to being the home of a University of The West Indies campus, Barbados has a new Polytechnic College and a Community College which now provide training in industrial and managerial skills. Until her independence in 1966, Barbados was under British rule for 300 years, and therefore claims English as her native tongue, an important factor for American industrialists. The government will assist management by screening job applicants through the Barbados Employment Exchange, and will aid in the training of new employees where special skills are required. Although Barbadian workers are generally organized, the country enjoys political stability and good labor relations, boasting of no major labor unrest since the 1930's.

Since independence, over 30 American businesses have opened on the island, in such fields as electronics, data processing, computer assembly, pharmaceuticals, and the manufacture of toys and garments. Barbados hopes to attract additional labor-intensive industries.

Barbados International Airport at Seawall is one of the most modern in the Caribbean, with daily connections to cities in the United States, Europe, South America and the Caribbean. MANUFACTURERS GATHER TO
ABOUT "OPERATION BEEHIVE"

Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania: October 25, 1973... The Barbados Industrial Development Corporation today hosted a luncheon seminar for industrialists in the Pittsburgh area at the Pittsburgh Hilton to outline "Operation Beehive," Barbados' program of incentives to manufacturers.

Under "Operation Beehive," Barbados offers manufacturers such incentives as duty-free importation of raw materials used in the manufacture of goods for re-export, lease-purchase arrangements of government constructed factory space, and unrestricted repatriation of capital and profits. Barbados also offers new industries a liberal ten year tax holiday, followed by a corporate tax ceiling of only 12½ for companies manufacturing solely for export.

Speaking at the luncheon, Mr. Roy Clarke, U.S. Manager of the Barbados Industrial Development Corporation, attributed much of the program's success to the island's highly literate (over 98% literacy rate), hard working and productive labor force.

BUSINESS OPPORTUNITIES WEEK

TO BE HELD IN BARBADOS

New York...A "Barbados Business Opportunities Week," the first ever held for American businessmen, has been scheduled for that Caribbean island nation, in January, 1974, by the Barbados Industrial Development Corporation and the Management Growth Institute of Wellesley, Mass., joint sponsors of the event, it was announced today.

"The purpose of this week is to invite American businessmen to come to Barbados for a first hand look at the enormous growth the country has experienced in manufacturing and to learn about the unique opportunities present for American manufacturing," said Roy Clarke, U.S. Manager of the Barbados Industrial Development Corporation, the agency set up by the Barbados government to encourage the development of manufacturing facilities on the island.

"The BIDC is equally pleased," he continued, "to join with the Management Growth Institute, an organization that has 10 years of experience in sponsoring orientation programs for American businessmen interested in expanding abroad."

Mr. David T. Barry, President of Management Growth Institute said that his firm had examined the possibility of jointly sponsoring a Barbados

Business Opportunities Week for some months and was pleased by the interest shown by American businessmen. "Our clients," Mr. Barry said, "are usually from smaller companies - not those in Fortune's 500 - and they find this type of business education program to be extremely worthwhile."

American participants in the Barbados Business Opportunities Week are scheduled to leave New York on January 15. In the days that follow, they will visit manufacturing plants and industrial parks, as well as attend seminars covering subjects such as the Barbados government's policy on legislation, trade, social welfare and benefits.

In addition, they will learn about "Operation Beehive," the title for the Barbados Industrial Development Corporation's formal program to bring industry to the country. Among the benefits offered to foreign manufacturers expanding into Barbados for export production are tax holidays as well as the use of plant facilities at industrial parks at extremely favorable terms. The government of Barbados does not charge duty on raw material needed to manufacture for export and industrial equipment brought into the country is similarly duty free.

"However, we Barbadians believe that our greatest potential for American manufacturers," Mr. Clarke said, "is our easily trained labor force which has one of the highest literacy rates in the world (over 98%) as well as our stable, popularly elected government."

Mr. Clarke said that in the past seven years more than 30 American companies, all of them in labor intensive industries, have expanded to Barbados and that his New York office conducts a vigorous campaign to encourage American business interest in the nation.

"That is why we believe the Barbados Business Opportunities Week is such an exciting program," Mr. Clarke stated, "since it offers American businessmen a unique opportunity to see and learn about our country in general as well as to speak with officials and private management about the opportunities specifically geared to their industry."

The cost for participation in Barbados Business Opportunities Week is $895.00 per person (spouse $295) and includes round trip air fare from New York City, accommodations at the Colony Club, all breakfasts and dinners, tips and baggage handling, transfers as well as all meetings, seminar and travel in connection with the officially sponsored events during the Week.

BARBADOS TO HOST AGENCY SEMINARS
IN MILWAUKEE & CHICAGO

Barbados Board of Tourism will host mid-Western travel agents at two seminar/receptions scheduled for the end of June.

The first will be held on June 27 at The Pfister Hotel, Milwaukee. On the following day, June 28, a "repeat performance" has been scheduled at the Continental Plaza Hotel in Chicago. Both events begin at 5:30 p.m. and will end at 7:30 p.m.

The two mid-summer receptions are an integral part of the current Barbados promotional campaign, designed to acquaint agents with that resort island in the Caribbean. Similar receptions have been held this year in Cincinnati, Detroit, San Diego, Los Angeles and San Francisco.

Agents wishing to attend the "Bajan Evening" in either Milwaukee or Chicago are invited to contact the Barbados Board of Tourism, 801 Second Avenue, New York, NY 10017.

Mr. Livingstone Burrowes, Chairman of the Barbados Board of Tourism was elected first Vice President of the Caribbean Travel Association at its 22nd Annual General Meeting held in Aruba from 12th to 15th September, 1973.

Mr. Burrowes has been a Director and a member of the Executive Committee for the past three years.

The most important single item discussed at the meeting, Mr. Burrowes stated, centered on legislative bills now before both houses of the U.S. Congress aimed at liberalizing our charter operations by easing existing restrictions on inclusive tour charters (ITC's).

The bills would open the way for tour operators, and supplemental air carriers to organize one stop charters between, say, New York and Barbados and thereby new avenues to the development of low fare travel to the Caribbean. At present all ITC's out of the U.S.A. must be organized with at least three destination stops.

According to Mr. Burrowes multi-destination stops effectively precluded the development of low fare ITC operations by U.S. tour operators and air carriers, permitted for some time a significant volume of that country's foreign travel is by ITC's

While approval of one stop ITC's at the meeting was not universal, the Barbados delegation took the view that its introduction to Barbados could be a desirable stimulus to the continuing growth of tourism in that country - but that control mechanisms must be built into the system at strategic points.

Other persons comprising the Barbados delegation were Mr. Lawrence Nurse - Board of Tourism Member - who read a report on the performance of the Barbados tourist industry over the past year, which was well received and the Hon. Peter Morgan, Minister of Tourism, Information & Public Relations, who reported on the establishment of the Caribbean Tourism Centre in Barbados last August. Mr. Morgan is Chairman of the Board of Directors of the Centre.

Barbadians, past masters at hospitality, extend a warm welcome to some 250,000 visitors a year now. And though most of these visitors are temporary exiles from the "rat race," not all are escapees from colder climes. Nor do they all unload at Seawell International Airport. A few have wafted ashore in stranger-than-fiction craft, though many disembark from conventional cruise ships.

Bajans, for example, eagerly awaited the arrival of a curious, nearly nude crew of a raft that drifted off shore last July. The usual Bajan hospitality was thwarted, however, when it was discovered that the crew wouldn't be coming ashore. The raft, Acali by name, had spent seventy days drifting out of the Canary Islands on a one hundred and ten day cruise to the Mexican Yucatan Peninsula. The purpose of the trip was to carry out a close range antropological and psychological study of an isolated multinational group of six women and five men at close quarters. Members of the floating human relations laboratory were not allowed ashore for fear of contaminating the study.

Another strange multinational crew drifted ashore some years ago. It was the Thor Hyerdahl group on the famous papyrus raft "Ra II" after an Atlantic crossing from North Africa. The Bajans gave the raft a rousing welcome.

Then there was the crew of the balloon Small World. The balloon collapsed, the gondola was ditched in the ocean, but the Bajans turned out anyway for an appropriate Bajan welcome after the crew was fished out of the sea by an astonished fisherman who was passing by on his way to pick up his fish pots. The fisherman thought Old Man Neptune had finally gotten to him until he saw the Bajan throng.

The full Bajan hospitality treatment was also accorded to a Dr. Boundbard who crossed the Atlantic alone in a canoe. Dr. Boundbard survived entirely on daily harvests of plankton from the sea, which is what he set out to prove could be done.

Barring visitors from unidentified flying or floating objects, Barbadians are likely to continue their hospitality for a long time to come. When one lives on a 166 square mile patch of paradise, surrounded by blue, blue waters, clean sea air, and uncrowded stretches of sandy beach, admit it -- you just have to relax a little. Being friendly follows.

BARBADOS REGISTERS 1972 VISITOR INCREASE

Statistics recently released by the Barbados Board of Tourism show that the total number of visitors to that Caribbean island nation in 1972 increased 11.24% over 1971. Moreover, during the period from April through November the number of visitors increased by 13.55%. The greatest increases were registered in March (31%) and October (30%) bearing out the fact that more and more people are favoring Spring and Fall vacations over the traditional Winter retreats. Of the 12 month period, only January was marked by a decrease of approximately 4%.

Barbados, which prides itself on its legendary beaches, hospitality carefree way of life, and balmy temperatures ranging between 70° and 85° all year round, has had a long tradition of social and political stability. Despite competitive thrusts into U.S. markets by other destinations, tourism has increased steadily.

A vigorous, ongoing promotion program has been strengthened by the restructuring of the Barbados Board of Tourism, the addition of more executive and sales personnel, and a visitor orientation campaign for employees of the island's tourism facilities.

ART BUFFS FIND TREASURE IN BARBADOS

Visitors to Barbados have traditionally found strolling through the island's innumerable handicraft shops a temptation second only to sun and sea. For the intrepid collector, Pelican Village, the center of the island's handicraft industry has become a main attraction with native artists exhibiting their craft in wood, shell and coral indigenous to the Caribbean, and selling wares of metal, straw, fabrics and pottery

For the visitor venturing beyond Bridgetown, however, the treasure hunt for native crafts can lead to unexpected delights, for off the beaten path one may come across an artist as yet "undiscovered" by the throng

One who has recently come to light is Stella St. John whose Batik Studio Gallery can be found at Enterprise Coast Road, Christ Church, just east of Oistins town and near the South Point Lighthouse.

Stella, whose oils have been exhibited at the IX Biennial de Sao Paulo in 1967, has been working in batik for the past seven years. Her hand done batik designs on West Indian sea island cotton are executed in a highly individual style. Sea island cotton, for those not familiar with it, has an unusually long silky fiber and was grown along the southeast coast of the U.S. before becoming a chief crop of the West Indies.

In Barbados, admittedly, half the fun in searching out art treasures is in the seeking. The real "find" though may be just around the corner.

BARBADOS CONFIDENT OF VITAL TOURISM
IN FACE OF GROWING COMPETITION

"It's going to be a tough job maintaining our position in North American markets this year."

The statement by Livingstone Burrowes, Chairman of the recently renamed Barbados Board of Tourism, was made at a press interview recently after the conclusion of a promotional tour of Canada and the U.S. by representatives of the Board, the Barbados Hotel Association, and other sectors of the island's tourism industry.

Despite competitive thrusts into U.S. markets by tourism industries in the Commonwealth Caribbean, Haiti, and South American countries, the Chairman, nevertheless, showed reasons for optimism.

For one, the restructured and expanded Board and its staff provides more precise instruments for vigorous and vital tourism with which to meet competitive efforts by other destinations. For another, the response to the Board's participation in the Henry Davis Trade Show was excellent. Mr. Burrowes was particularly encouraged by the fact that so many in the trade were familiar and pleased with the program of Briefings initiated by the Board in Barbados. The Briefings take Mr. Burrowes and his team of Tourist Board members and staff to all hotels, shops and other visitor facilities on the island to impress all employees with the importance of maintaining a positive attitude towards overseas visitors and providing the hospitality for which Barbadians have long been known throughout the world.

The Briefings, he concluded, should be a continuing part of the Board's local promotional program and will be carried in due course to even wider audiences.

FOR RELEASE APRIL 12TH 1973

BARBADOS MINISTER OF TOURISM ANNOUNCES IMPORTANT
CHANGES AFFECTING $85 MILLION INDUSTRY

As the record-breaking 1973 winter season drew to its April 15th close the Hon. Peter Morgan, Minister of Tourism, Information and Public Relations has stated that beginning with a change of name, the Barbados Tourist Board, to be known in future as the Barbados Board of Tourism (subject to legislative approval), will undertake a re-structuring and expansion of its organisation both at home and overseas.

In announcing the change of name, the Minister emphasized that this was primarily to eliminate the word 'Tourist' in keeping with the Barbadian habit of welcoming people to Barbados as friends and visitors rather than as 'Tourists'. The word 'Tourism', on the other hand, embraces the whole industry in all its facets.

The Toronto and New York Offices will be strengthened by additional Sales Personnel, which will make possible, amongst other things, emphasis on specific Markets such as Group and Convention business, I.T.C.'s and the Black American visitors.

New premises are being sought for the Board's Office in London and the recently appointed Board Representative there will be backed by the recruitment of supporting staff. For the first time the Board will also engage the services of a Sales Manager, Europe.

A new departure is the establishment of the post of Representative in Caracas. This has been done in recognition of the importance of the Venezuelan Market particularly as regards summer season business.

The Manager of the Board, will in future be styled 'Director of Tourism', and the home base of the Board of Tourism will be re-organised and re-structured. The addition of more Executive Personnel in particular will permit greater attention to marketing, long range planning and the further improvement of the Barbados Tourism product.

Future plans in Barbados include the provision of additional group and convention facilities; a programme to assure the continued support of, and participation by, the people of the country; the creation of an Underwater Park and Art Gallery; and further development of the programme designed to facilitate visitors and residents getting to know each other better.

THE SEVEN DELIGHTS OF BARBADOS

Incensed by inflation? Stymied by strikes? Puzzled by politics? Then it's time to "pack up your troubles in your old kit-bag," toss your summer garbs in the nearest suitcase - and discover Barbados.

Why Barbados? Because this friendly island, the most easterly in the Caribbean, offers the 7-basic "S's" sought for in tourist meccas: sun; sand; sea; sports; shops; sights and service. And in Barbados, where these amenities are available year-round, they are an exceptional buy from mid-April through mid-December.

The beaches in Barbados are reputed to be among the most beautiful in the world. Thirty miles of pure-white, unspoiled beaches embrace the island, and are continuously cooled by gentle trade breezes. On the east coast lies the invigorating surf of the Atlantic Ocean, where the more intrepid tourist may wish to swim. The calm and clear Caribbean Sea, with a color that can be described only as "Fantasy Blue," sprawls on the west coast.

Sports enthusiasts can enjoy deep sea fishing, water skiing, surfing, scuba diving, snorkeling, and all types of boating, including sailing, yachting, motoring, and cruising by sun-or-moon. (Landlubbers take courage: golf, tennis, horseback riding, croquet, badminton, and bicycling are also available.) To fully complement all these facilities and activities, the island boast of sunny days and ideal temperatures ranging from 75-85 degrees throughout the year.

Shopping in Barbados is a Utopia for bargain-seekers. The island features modern department stores and high-fashion boutiques, all offering a wide range of quality merchandise at duty-free prices. Some of the best buys consist of china, crystal, perfume, jewelry, cameras, watches, clothing, and liquor - particularly the incomparable Barbados rum. A visit to Pelican Village should not be by-passed. This government-sponsored arts and crafts center displays and sells original products made solely by local artisans.

Sightseeing is another alluring attribute of Barbados. A "must" is a visit to Bridgetown, the island's capital. The city is undergoing somewhat of a transformation, whereby centuries of British tradition and influence are slowly merging with 20th Century "progress". The result is a unique combination of the emergence of modern structures and high-rise buildings, juxtaposed with the appearance of colorfully-dressed local vendors selling their wares, and the Harbour Police, still wearing the uniform from Lord Nelson's era. There are also helicopter tours which afford striking "bird's-eye" views of the whole island. Don't forget to bring your camera (bought locally, of course)!

The Bajans (as Barbadians call themselves) are proud of their service and solicitude to tourists. They are an inherently warm and friendly people, and take great pains to cater to visitors. They are justifiably proud of their tranquil island, and are anxious to share all its charms and treasures. Remarkably relaxed, they somehow transfer this feeling of serenity to the tourists. Blame it on some mysterious osmosis process!

While Barbados is not a panacea for the world's problems, a visit there can alleviate, albeit in some small way, the day-to-day pressures. You can write to the Barbados Tourist Board, 801 Second Avenue, New York City 10017 for detailed information including rates, accommodations and activities. But you'd better do it today - while we still have access to mail service!
